It has been said that no native of an arctic country can long view an auroral display without an almost uncontrollable desire to seek the interior of his hut and the glow of a fire of far less brilliancy, but one much more valuable for its life giving warmth. The light of the nurora materially assists miners of Alaska during the short arctic day by enabling them to work when it would otherwise be dark -St.

There is absolutely nothing in the way of recreation so beneficial in every respect to a boy as boxing. I am positive-and I know whereof I write, for as boy and man I have tried them all, fencing, wrestling, rowing, swimming, riding—that, no one of them has the many advantages of boxing. As an all round developer it is unequaled; not one of the boy's muscles remains in active; back, stomach, legs, arms, all are called upon for vigorous service. But what I consider its best feature in its recommendation for boys is the very thorough drilling which the disposition of the boy must undergo.

If a lad is quick to lose his temper box-ing will cure him. It will teach him that no one who lets his temper get the better of him will become an expert sparrer. It will speedily convince him of the absolute occessity of keeping cool and in entire pos-session of his wits in order to sustain his session of his wits in order to sustain his efforts and avoid defeat. The boxer who cannot control his temper is practically at the mercy of a cool, skillful opponent. One cannot spar successfully and become flustered. A boxer must ever be on the alert, his wits constantly alive, looking for an opportunity. an opportunity of assault. He must be able to net instantly and with cool deliberation as distinguished from wild, andirected action. He need do no running to develop the muscles of his legs or his lungs. These are all continuously in action. -Harper's Young People.

Costly Postage Stamps.

Some stamps are quoted at big prices. The rarest of French stamps, that of one franc, orange color, besue of 1849, is worth mane, orange color, issue of 180, is worth ninety dollars new and twenty live dollars if canceled. The first Hawaian stamp issued, with figures instead of design, is currently exchanged for a $100 bill, if in a good state of preservation. The stamps of Reunion Island in 1852, one for fifteen the other for thirty centimes, both on sky blue paper and prints to the color of the colo blue paper and printed with ordinary types, are worth more than $200 for the

Between stamps quoted at such high prices and those obtainable for a halfpen ny there are plenty of a good average kind worth fear worth from twenty cents to a dollar. The Mexican Guadaluxaras, white, half real 1867, and canceled, are worth fifty dollars the English Guianas, round, black or yel low, 1850, are worth fifty-five dollars; the telegraph stamp of Bavaria, 1870, is worth fifty dollars if it is new, twenty dollars i canceled.-Chiengo Herald.

Figures That Are Incomprehensible.

A single cubic inch of chalk, such a forms the great chiffs under and around the city of Dover, England, contains about 8,000,000 of separate shells. When it is re membered that these cliffs (which give to England one of its names, Albion-white) form a stratum from 1,500 to 3,000 feet in depth, and extending along the English coast and even under the channel, all the way across to Calais, France, and which also reaches many miles inland, the mind is overpowered by any effort to com-prehend the infinite numbers of animals required to form such a deposit. All the animals whose skeletons and shells compose this immense stratum of chalk must have lived in fresh water, probably in an immense lake, and hun dreds, perhaps thousands, of centuries must have passed while, grain by grain, this great deposit was being formed. The lime, in the shape of soluble carbonate, and in solution in the waters in this vast lake, was taken up by these invisible and mals and laid down as phosphate and car bonate of lime in their shells and bones.-Macon Telegraph.

A Pertinent Question.

The force and value of a remark depend largely on the rge and standing of the per son who utters it. Leslie Robinson is a boy about four years old. His father was employed for a few days by two maiden sisters who had some work to be done about their place.

One of them wishing to see him said to the other, "Where is Robinson?" Leslie overheard the question, and responded at once in a very demure, drawling manner:

"How — would —it —do—to—call—him—
Mister—Robinson?"—Youth's Companion

JANE.

I promised you my love, Jane.
When we were wedded young: Our joys a-twin, our hopes were one,
"Tis sweet to love," we sung. We trusted life, Blind to its strife,
When we were wedded young.

I promised you my care, Jane, When we were wested true. You nestled fondly at my side-How strong I felt in you! Care was my life Through shine and strife, Because 'twas care for you.

I gave you, love, no jewels But the plain ring you wear:

No string of pearls nor glittering gems
To deck your raven hair.

Your native grace
And wholesome face
Excelled such fond repair.

And I'm your lover still, Jane. The ardent pulses spring
As when I pressed your maiden hand:
Your love song still I sing.
Sweetheart and wife,

So end with life Our wedded journeying.

The Ancients knew the Use of Tin It is impossible to fix the date at which the export trade in tin was commenced from the British islands, but it is certain that it existed and was controlled by the Phoenicians when Herodotus wrote his his tory, 450 B. C. Herodotus refers to the Cassiterides (the Scilly islands) as the places whence they were then obtaining their supplies, but neither he nor any other historian has left us any information as to when the test of the second control of the second c when that trade commenced. The Phoeni clans called this land of tin "Baratanac," and Bochart and other historians attribute the very origin of the name of Britain to

After the Phoenicians the trade in tin with the Cassiterides was taken up by the Greeks sailing out of Marseilles, the city of Massila, which was built by a colony of Greeks 600 H. C. The Phænicians probably sailed straight across from their col-ony of Gades, or Cadiz, and returned direct to that port with their valuable cargoes. The Greeks, however, appear to have been accustomed to coast up the English chan nel, and crossing over from Kent to France, the tin was conveyed overland on horse back in thirty days to the mouth of the River Rhone.-Boston Herald.

Young America Is Practical. A Lewiston father took his bright eyed boy of ten years to see the shell mounds at Damariscotta a few days ago, and endeav ored to impress a lesson on the youngster.

"My son," said he, "see how orderly these Indians were. They piled all their shells up in a keap in this one place in-stead of leaving them around loose."

"Pa," said the youthful auditor, after a few moments' reflection, "I guess I know why they did it."

"Well, why?"

"Because I guess the Indians went bare footed, and they were afraid the shells would cut their toes if they left 'em scattered over the ground."

Young America is nothing if not prac-tical, and he thinks for himself. - Lewiston

Lace in the Time of Louis XIV.

To what extent lace was used may be guessed from the statement that France, in time of Louis XIV, sent yearly to Italy almost as much money for it as would have maintained her army. No wonder the king and Colbert passed laws against the for eign fabric smuggled in by Italian lace makers, and by help of subsidies set up the manufacture in a dozen French provinces, where a poor sort was already made
